STATE BUDGET TO BE LARGER

Even When Pruning Over and Salary Increases Denied Total Apparently Will Be Over $156,000,000.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Dec. 13.—Requests for appropriations for the operation of the state government for the fiscal year 1924-25 are upwards of $200,000,000 it became known today.

While the requests are certain to be pruned by the legislative finance committee leaders, it seems almost certain now that last year's budget of $156,000,000 will be exceeded in the next budget.

All requests for appropriations have been filed with the state board of estimate and control, Research Director Joseph H. Wilson announced, with the exception of the state department of public works. The request from this department will have to be in by Saturday.

Salary increases are asked by many of the departments, bureaus and commissions. No increases, however, have been asked by either the state comptroller or the tax bureau. The personal service request from the comptroller's office is nearly $10,000 less than last year.

The state education department has asked for an increase of approximately $6,000,000. The state board of regents has recommended that the salary of Dr. Frank P. Graves, state education commissioner, be increased from $12,000 to $15,000. Other personal service increases asked by the education department total $97,710.

The motion picture censorship commission has requested an appropriation of $117,559, about $14,000 more than last year. The commission would like to create a new deputy commissioner at a salary of $4,000 to take charge of inspection work and prosecute violations of the censorship law.

Salary increases totalling $82,900 are asked by the conservation commission.

The prison department has requested an increase of $7,000, and Superintendent of Prisons Charles F. Rattigan has asked that his salary be raised from $8,000 to $10,000.

The state hospital commission has requested an increase in personal service totalling $13,483.

Salary increases of $66,230 have been asked for the state engineer's department.

The state architect's office would like to raise salaries to the tune of $82,190.

The state health department has requested salary increases totalling $25,000.

FEDERALS REPORT SOME SUCCESS AROUND TAMPICO

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Tampico, Mex., Dec. 13.—A military censorship was established here today by the commandant of the garrison.

Federal troops operating between the Panuco river and Tuxpan in the heart of the Tampico oil fields, have captured Colonel Porras, who with part of the Seventy-first regiment, mutined and attempted to join the rebels.

Most of the mutineers returned to their regiment pledging their loyalty to President Obregon.

General Manuel Palaez has been placed under arrest by General Lorenzo Munoz, the garrison commandant. He is being held at the military barracks under guard.

General Munoz explained that Palaez's arrest was a precautionary measure to prevent him from joining the Huertas revolutionary movement.

"I am not alarmed for my safety," said Palaez. "I am being well treated. I merely returned here to look after personal business matters."

OBREGON ARMY TAKES OFFENSIVE

To Regain Control of State of Jalisco, —Effort Also to be Made to Recapture Vera Cruz.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Mexico City, Dec. 13.—Federal troops acting upon order from President Obregon, today began an offensive against the De La Huerta-Sanchez rebels in the state of Jalisco.

The rebels in Jalisco are under command of General Estrada, who seized Guadalajara several days ago.

Federal troops under General Amaro are marching upon Guadulajara and a battle is expected in that district within 24 hours.

There are about 8,000 loyal federal soldiers in Jalisco. The bulk of them are on the move to give battle to the insurrectos.

The advanced positions of the rebels lie between Ococtian and Labarca where fighting is expected. The federals are under stern orders from Mexico City to clear the entire state of rebel troops.

Orders have been sent to the mobilized troops at Esperanza to reinforce the federals in the state of Vera Cruz for a concerted effort to relieve the city of Vera Cruz, now held by General Guadalupe Sanchez's forces. General Flores sent word to President Obregon that he has temporarily withdrawn his candidacy for the Mexican presidency in order to give his full attention to his duties as governor of the state of Sinaloa.

Hipolito Villa, brother of the late "Pancho Villa," sent word from Canutillo, state of Chihuahua, that he would obey the request of his dead brother and remain loyal to the Obregon government.

Salvation Army Kettles to Appear

The Salvation Army Christmas kettles will appear on the streets in a few days, and the familiar ding-a-ling will remind the busy Christmas shoppers to drop in their contribution for Christmas dinners and toys for the poor. Many families will look to the Salvation Army for assistance at this time of the year and will have plenty of good things for Christmas because of the generosity of the Kingston folk who are more fortunte than they.

Captain Newton has mailed no letter appeals this year, due to the fact that the Home Service Appeal for the coming year's budget is now on. However, to meet the immediate need of the poor the captain is anticipating cheerful giving in the kettles.

Any persons who would like to send donations of cash or otherwise (expressly for Christmas work) may send to Captain E. Newton, 356 Washington avenue. Mark checks "Christmas Relief Fund." Phone 1803.

KORETZ WHO GAVE ADVICE AT HIGH PRICES SOUGHT

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—Masters of trans-Atlantic liners clearing from New York in the last few days, and police of principal ports to the seven seas today were in possession of radio information asking their aid in the search for Leo Koretz, wealthy patron of the arts and social figure.

Investments which State's Attorney Robert Crowe stated would total $3,000,000 have been made on Koretz's word by Chicago friends who seek an accounting after a fruitless visit to Panama and a vain effort to locate the timber and oil holdings of the "Bayano River Trust."

The last trace of Koretz ends with his leaving the St. Regis hotel in New York, where members of the Panama expedition sought to find him when they could not locate his Panama holdings.

When it was learned he had checked out from the St. Regis, December 6, Crowe led officers in raids on Koretz's magnificent offices occupying a whole floor of the Majestic building here, and on his branch offices at the exclusive Drake Hotel. Books of his investment projects were seized and an attempt will be made to compile the total investments made on Koretz's advice.

Two days after the date he was last seen in New York, a package containing $75,000 in jewels which had been charged to his account, was received at his home, a palatial residence which he rented on exclusive Sheridan Road. His wife told investigating officers she and her two children were practically penniless but what little jewelry she possessed would be used to defray claims of investors.

Koretz's mother had placed $45,000, all her savings, with her son for stock in the trust.

Saxe Welcomes Early Shoppers

County Clerk John H. Saxe, who is the dispenser of New York State automobile lincense plates, will be delighted if the owners of motor vehicles who desire to obtain 1924 license plates will do their shopping at his office early. On and after January 1, it will be a violation of the state motor law to operate publicly a motor car without having the 1924 license plates attached to the vehicle. The applications for plates are growing more numerous each day and those who have availed themselves of the opportunity of getting them in advance at the county clerk's office will not be obliged to stand around for some time after January 1, to await their turn to get them. Those who are wise will be able to save considerable time by getting their blanks and having them filled out with correct kind of lenses used on their headlights.

The police department may have a record of all local automobile owners, the license and engine numbers and a complete description as the result of the action of the State Automobile Bureau in making out license application blanks in quadruplicate. According to the instructions of County Clerk Saxe, a copy of the description of every licensed car must be sent to the state department at Albany and a second kept by the car owner. He has no instructions as to what is to be done with the other two blanks but thinks that they may be intended for use by the police and sheriff's offices.

NOVEMBER EMPLOYMENT LESS; PROBABLY TEMPORARY

The factory employment reports for November show that employment went down almost 2 per cent, although November is usually the busiest month of pre-Christmas activity. This statement was issued by Industrial Commissioner Bernard L. Shientag of the State Department of Labor, at Albany.

Employment in the manufacturing industries is still at a high level. It is still as high as it was a year ago, and it is very much higher than in November of 1921. Payrolls have risen steadily and show a substantial increase over those of last year. The decrease in employment in November for this year may, therefore, only be temporary in character.

There does not appear to be any simple reason for the apparent slackening. The purchasing power of factory employes is high and that of farmers has recently improved. One difficulty is psychological-lack of confidence and therefore of forward buying. On the other hand if fear of overproduction or of bad times lead to unemployment, that in itself will seriously reduce factory payrolls and help still further to restrict business.

CHEVROLET AGENCY HAS MAGNETIC XMAS DISPLAY

The show window of Sutliff, Inc., distributors for the Chevrolet cars for Ulster and Greene counties, presents a very novel Christmas display. In one of the big show windows a representation of a room is shown. In one corner of the room stands a Christmas tree decorated with bright ornaments. Nearby stands a reproduction of "Saint Nick" with his arm extended pointing to a Chevrolet sedan which "makes a Christmas present which every member of the family will enjoy." The details have been very cleverly worked out and the furnishings of the room are complete even to the numerous pictures which adorn the walls.

SENATE REBELS STANDING PAT

Will Fight Cummins to End—One Democrat's Defection Prevented Democrat Being Named Interstate Commerce Committee Chairman.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Threats of Republican split in congress, that might ultimately defeat the administration's entire legislative problem, rumbled through the capital today while majority leaders anxiously sought means of restoring party harmony.

The legislative situation had created anxiety, Republican leaders admitted, because of the bitterness among progressive insurgents in the senate, who bolted the party to vote for a Democrat in the election of a chairman for the senate interstate commerce committee. This group of seven senate insurgents had forced a two day vacation, were threatening to permanently bolt the party, had tied up all legislation, and aroused endless concern among administration leaders.

Their immediate clash with the regular Republicans has deadlocked for three days the election of the committee chairman, to which Senator Albert B. Cummins, of Iowa, president pro tem of the senate aspired. The insurgents however, opposed Cummins and while voting at first for Senator LaFollette, Republican, Wisconsin, their leader, later switched to Senator Ellison D. Smith of South Carolina. Smith failed of election by a single vote.

House insurgents, led by Representative John Nelson, Republican, Wisconsin, added further troubles to the Republican leadership. The Nelson group, which blocked the house in its election of a speaker last week, planned a new rebellion, directed against the distribution of committee assignments.

The senate revolt, however, caused administration leaders the most alarm. Offers of compromise have so far been rejected by the insurgents, who were reported to have opened negotiations with the senate Democrats for a coalition to overthrow the Republican leadership. The Democrats were said to be listening to the offer.

Republican leaders, however, held conferences to determine whether they would concede all demands to the progressives or wage a war against the insurgents to the finish.

The progressives maintained a united front, merely announcing that there were no indications of a change in their plans.

"We will fight the selection of Senator Cummins as chairman of the interstate commerce committee to the finish," Senator Norris said, acting leader of the group. "There is nothing to indicate a change in our plans. Whatever we do we will not accept Cummins."

Leaders of the factions have until Monday to settle their differences, because and agreement was reached to postpone further voting upon the chairmanship until then.

A new offer of compromise, it was said, is being prepared by administration leaders. This was said to include the elimination of Cummins and the substitution of another Republican, acceptable to the insurgents, as the candidate of the regulars. The names of Senators Watson of Indiana, McLean of Connecticut, and Fernald of Maine, were mentioned.

ALE BOATS STILL UNABLE TO GET CARGOES ACROSS

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 13.—At hints of a conspiracy by small craft navigators to get to the 500 cases of ale aboard two boats held by the customs authorities of Canada, at Fort Erie, armed guards patrolled the wharf throughout the night and were relieved by members of the provincial police at daybreak.

This morning boats and their supplies of holiday liquor were still under guard, but officials heard that while the big bulk was being watched rivermen along the Niagara continued their liquor running and brought great consignments to the American shores near La Salle, which lies between Buffalo and Niagara Falls. Meanwhile the United States coast guard within the American water limits watching for any attempted break on the parts of the crews of the "Dawn" and "Nora" to leave the Canadian lock for open water, determined to stop the boats from landing their ale on American territory.

Dawes Picked As One U.S. Expert

So Says Report From Inter-Allied Commission—Hoover Prominently Mentioned—Germany Nor Neutrals to be Represented.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, Dec. 13.—The inter-allied reparations commission met today; when the personnel of members of the committees, which will study Germany's capacity for reparations payment, was discussed. It was learned that the commission has practically decided to suggest the name of Charles G. Dawes, former director of the budget in the United States government, as one of the American members.

There are to be three Americans upon the various committees, but so far as known only Dawes's name was discussed today. Herbert Hoover is prominently mentioned.

All the members of the committees will have an equal voice. It is now regarded as certain Germany will not have membership in any of the committees. France also insists that neutrals be barred.

German witnesses will be called before the committees from time to time to give testimony and to produce documents. The enquiry is expected to last about two months.

It is likely the French representatives will be M. Parmentier, famous economic expert; M. Attalin, director of the Bank of Paris and Holland and M. Nezondoski, administrator of Comptoir Des Comptes.

The press unanimously welcomed the mention of General Dawes's name as one of the Americans. He became well known to the French officials during the latter years of the war when he was chairman of the general purchasing board of the American army in France.

YOUNG LEE HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Saved From Fatal Electric Shock by Timely Discovery of His Danger by Engineer Pratt Who Saw Lad Hanging From Transformers Wednesday—Will Live.

George Lee, 9 years old, son of Harry Lee of No. 478 Hasbrouck avenue, was saved from death by electric shock Wednesday by Engineer William H. Pratt, in charge of the city hall heating plant, who happened to glance out of the window of the city court room about 4 o'clock that afternoon and saw the lad's body hanging from the big electric transformers on the outside of the Kingston Gas & Electric Company's plant in the rear of the city hall.

With two other boys, Louis Cisno and Eddie Mills, the lad was playing around the electric plant, and the gates being opened he entered the grounds. It is said that the other lads dared young Lee to climb up the iron supporting poles around the transformers, and that the boy accepted the dare. When he reached the top he must have come into direct contact with an electric wire leading to a transformer.

That the lad was not hurled from the pole is due to the fact that one of his legs became twisted around one of the iron supports and there he hung face downward.

It was a few minutes afterward that Engineer Pratt walked into the city court room and happened to glance out of the window toward the electric plant when he was horrified to see the body of the boy. Mr. Pratt rushed out of the building and down to the plant and secured the assistance of two of the plant employes who donned rubber gloves and with the aid of a ladder climbed up to where the boy's body hung, and released him.

The lad was conscious when rescued, and it is said that the full voltage of 13,000 volts had passed through his body. That he was not killed outright seems a miracle.

Superintendent Ronk of the electric plant carried the boy in his arms to the Kingston City Hospital, nearby, where he was attended by Dr. Norwood and then taken to his home. Later it was deemed advisable to return him to the hospital where he was also treated by Dr. Frank A. Johnston. The doctors found that the boy had been burned about the hands and abdomen but expect that he will recover.

These big transformers receive the electric power direct from Honk Falls, and from the transformers the current enters the plant and is distributed throughout the city at the required voltage.

At the hospital today it was stated that young Lee's condition was very favorable.

DOPE INJURIOUS TO CAR BATTERY

Normal Way Is to Pass Current of Electricity Through It and Avoid Injury.

(BY ERWIN GREER President Greer College of Automotive Engineering Chicago.)

In the old days gasoline economizers were quite in style. The get-rich-quick fiends. They were much more common than they are now. One could buy them in powder, paper, tablet or liquid form and probably administer them in homeopathic or allopathic doses—for the effect was just the same.

As long as the car owner was very careful to have the carbon removed from the engine cylinders the valves ground and the carburetor adjusted and then apply the so-called economizer to the fuel tank, he was certain to get greater mileage per gallon of gasoline. And no wonder!

Sold as Mysterious Compounds.

The same thing applies to the present day storage battery rejuvenators, "recharging solutions" and what not that are being sold as mysterious compounds and wonderful discoveries which recharge your storage battery in twenty minutes. Any battery service station can do the same thing by doping a battery with strong acid but they know the harmful effects of such treatment.

The surprising thing is the willingness of many people to pay fabulous prices three to five dollars being asked for a single application of these 'dopes' when most storage battery service stations would do the same thing for 25 cents.

Normal Mode of Operation

There is nothing mysterious about pouring strong acid solution into a discharged battery and having it operate in twenty or thirty minutes afterward. Any service station can do that but the normal way to recharge a battery is to pass a current of electricity through it and so old injuring it or lengthening its life. The quick way is to pay three to five dollars for about 2 cents worth of strong acid—and face the consequences.

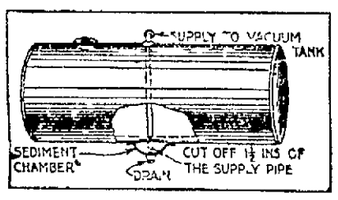
WAY TO PREVENT GAS LINE FROM FREEZING

Due to Fact That Water Gets Into Garage Supply.

Every winter gas lines freeze because of water in the tank. This is mainly due to the fact that water gets into the garage gasoline supply from the street level because the driver of the supply wagon does not sponge out the filling chamber before unscrewing the cap thus allowing rain and melted snow to run into the storage reservoir from which it is pumped into the tanks of automobiles along with the gasoline.



Lower End of Supply Pipe in Tank Is Cut Off

I found that by cutting off about one and one half inches from the lower end of the supply pipe a reservoir of more than a gallon is formed at the bottom of the tank.

There is another advantage in this arrangement. If you happen to run out of gasoline you can unscrew the tank plug and fill some of the reserve into the vacuum tank.—Ernest T. Oldfelt in Popular Science Monthly.

NOISY VIBRATIONS OF LEVER

Source of Nerve Racking Annoyance in Many Cars Has Been Prevented in Some Models

Noisy vibration of the gear shift lever a source of nerve-racking annoyance in many cars has been entirely prevented in some models through the medium of a noiseless control set. The control lever of this new type of control is held snugly in place by a high tension coil spring which is fitted to the base of the gear control ball. This spring prevents the gear shift lever from vibrating regardless of the condition of the roads.

Consistency Can Be Found by Use of Pointed Rod of Certain Weight Dropped In

Lubricating greases, the same as oils, are classified according to consistency or body. About the only way of testing for consistency is by the use of a pointed rod of a certain weight, which is dropped point downward into a certain quantity of grease. The hardness is judged by the distance the rod penetrates into the lubricant when it is of a certain temperature, usually about 68 degrees.

Street Safety Rules

Do not trail street cars too closely.

Make sure a street car is not coming when starting out from the curb.

Avoid speeding to get ahead of street car when other cars are parked at the curb.

To get ahead of a street car, make sure it is well to the rear before cutting in front.

There's a Difference.

FAILURE OF PRESSURE FEED

Leather or Rubber Gasket in Filler Cup Often Becomes Spongy or Gets Caked

It sometimes happens on cars where fuel is fed by pressure supplied by the exhaust gases it becomes increasingly difficult to maintain the pressure at the requisite figure. As a rule pressure does not drop quickly but seems gradually to ooze away. The first thing to do in a case of this kind is to examine the filler cap of the tank. A leather or rubber gasket is used at this point, and often the rubber becomes spongy or the leather gets hard and caked, or a small bit of foreign matter may have lodged between the cap and its seat. On the other hand it sometimes occurs that the pressure in the system is built up to a point where the small valve operated by the carburetor float will be unable to restrain the fuel and flooding of the instrument will result. As a rule, a pressure of one and a half pounds is ample to insure an uninterrupted supply of fuel in the carburetor.

AUTOMOBILE GOSSIP

Joits and jars are less evident the front seat than in the rear seat because the latter part of the car about midway to the chassis length and therefore centered between the springs.

* * *

There are still a great many engines without detachable cylinder heads, and these use valve plugs. These plugs often leak. This leakage may be stopped by spreading ordinary paste stove blacking over the threads.

* * *

Spark plugs should never be forced into position by severe wrench action. They should set firmly against a copper asbestos gasket with but little more force than can be applied with the fingers.

Red Seal Records

		DOUBLE-FACED Number	List Price
June—Barcarolle (Tschaikowsky) Violin Solo; Serenade (Toselli) Violin Solo	Erika Morini; Erika Morini	957	$1.50

Tschaikowsky's barcarolle, June, is one of his most familiar—and most charming—shorter compositions. Here it is for the violin. Toselli's lyrical "Serenade" is paired with it, and the resulting record is rich in melody.

Holy Night (Noel) (Adam); Nazareth (Chorley-Gounod)	Reinald Werrenrath; Reinald Werrenrath	6426	2.00

Every Christian household in the world should know these two songs—two of the most beautiful ever written. They are sung in clear, vigorous, perfect English, with splendid voice-quality.

Melodious Instrumental

Entr'acte—Gavotte (Gillet); In the Mill (Au Moulin) (Gillet)	Victor String Orchestra; Victor String Orchestra	19143	.75

Dainty numbers for the bowed strings, "the soul of the orchestra." The gavotte trips delicately as a toe-dancer. The moss-grown old water-wheel, clop-clop-clops, now fast, now slow. All is told in light, vivid, exquisitely-played string music.

Light Vocal Selections

Sittin' in a Corner; Lou'siana	Elliott Shaw; Lewis James-Elliott Shaw	19193	.75

"Sittin' in a Corner" is the fox-trot song of an apparent philosopher who plays wall-flower but doesn't seem worried over it. In "Lou'siana" James adds a tenor, and completes a splendid popular record.

Humorous

Be Like the Early Bird (Comic Dialogue); Why Adam Sinned	Arthur Moss-Ed. Frye; Arthur Moss-Ed. Frye	19190	.75

Moss and Frye sing why Adam sinned; and it seems that according to their whimsical reasoning it was because he hadn't any dear old Mammy to take him on her knee.

Dance Records

In Love with Love—Fox Trot (from "Stepping Stones"); Raggedy Ann—Fox Trot (from "Stepping Stones")	Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra	19187	.75

This record is a joy to both listener and dancer; big chimes, a delicate flute, celesta, strings, acute brass, blue saxes, and the dance-feeling throughout. "Raggedy Ann" has a symphonic climax.

Stack o' Lee Blues—Fox Trot; Stavin' Change—Fox Trot	Waring's Pennsylvanians; The Virginians	19189	.75

High-jazz and Paradise-rhythm appear in "Stack o' Lee," specially recommended for bizarre dancers. In the companion dance (high-jazz also), "the meanest man in New Orleans" is celebrated in the vocal refrain.

Mamma Loves Papa—Fox Trot; Ev'ry Night I Cry Myself to Sleep Over You—Fox Trot	Paul Whiteman and His Orchestra; Manhattan Merrymakers	19191	.75

"Mamma Loves Papa" yields an excellent Whiteman fox trot. "Every Night" you know as a song. It affords a fine companion dance.

"DIPS" INSTRUCTED BY TRAINED MEN

Criminologist Says Pickpockets Are Taught "Trade."

The mental and physical makeup of that world-wide class of minor criminals, the pickpocket, has been set forth with convincing accuracy by the one man in Europe doubtless best qualified to do so, Dr. E. Lewisch, for 18 years chief of the pickpocket section of the Vienna police.

The chief was addressing the delegates to the international police congress. The pickpocket, he said, is essentially a nomad, a rover. He finds his prey on the street, in places of amusement, when an accident draws people together, in the cloakroom of a theater, in short, wherever there is a crowd. He may operate in Vienna today and tomorrow be loitering about a city a hundred miles away. He must be ready to keep moving and give up any idea of a settled home. In Europe he must be a good linguist.

It is reasonably certain, Doctor Lewisch said, that these men are systematically trained in their work, and he believed the best schools are in Poland and Hungary. Beside strength and manual dexterity the pickpocket must have presence of mind, knowledge of men, and a ready adaptability to cope with unexpected and dangerous situations. Unbounded effrontery, self-confidence and a ready eloquence are important assets, and often help him to calm the agitation of his victim, avert suspicion, and even win the confidence and gratitude of the man he is robbing.

The successful pickpocket needs well-formed hands, strong and with long, narrow fingers. He must be able to seize a heavy purse with two fingers as with a pair of pincers, and extract it from a pocket by a quick and sure movement, or twist a watch ring out of its bearings with as easy a grace as if picking a flower from its stem.

In court the pickpocket denies passionately every charge brought against him. He admits absolutely nothing. He has a ready excuse to account for his presence in the city where he was caught. The stolen watch he will swear he picked up from the ground, and as an honest finder he was about to carry it to the police station. Before the judge he will simulate deafness or ignorance of the language of the court. He will fight for time by asking questions on his own account or pretend sickness or even insanity.

It takes time to build a good case against a pickpocket, Doctor Lewisch declared. He must be held while his record, often in other countries, is being looked up. He must be fingerprinted and photographed, and these evidences distributed to the police authorities all over Europe. And when he is found guilty, Doctor Lewisch concluded, give him a long sentence, preferably in the penitentiary.

Nature's Champion Bluffer.

Although the horn-toad, specimens of which have recently reached this country, is one of the most repulsive and formidable-looking of all creatures, it is in reality quite harmless.

No animal is a more thorough "bluffer." It can inflate its skin to twice its normal size, presenting an appearance of extreme ferocity. When it is angry it hisses and rattles its tail, while it is further endowed with the astonishing gift of squirting blood from its eyes! Actually, however, the horn-toad is as incapable of inflicting injury as the ordinary garden frog.

Its ability to emit blood from its eyes without damage to those delicate organs has lately claimed the attention of scientists, who have discovered that the toad squirts blood as a safety valve ejects steam. When the creature is disturbed its blood pressure rises, filling with blood the tiny pockets round its eyes. As the pressure increases the walls of these pockets give way, and the blood shoots forth, frightening away its enemy.

The blood is slightly acid, and causes a certain amount of discomfort to the person or animal whose skin it touches. The horn-toad can squirt its blood fifteen inches, at intervals of from one to two minutes, and has been known to repulse even rattlesnakes by this extraordinary means.

True Economy.

Here's another one about the economical Scotsman:

Ten lads and ten lassies went aboard the S. S. Columbia at New York for a bon voyage party to Mary McCann, a member of the Scots colony in New York, who was sailing for Glasgow. The music struck up and the lassies stepped out in pairs to dance, but the men glumly held to their places along the rail.

"Why don't you lads dance?"

"Dancin'," said John Grilley, one of the standees, "wears out yer boots."

All of It.

His wife had a cold, and could not go to church. But she insisted that he should go in her place.

"Well," she inquired on his return, "and what was the burden of the vicar's sermon?"

He sat down with a weary sigh.

"All of it, my dear," he said.

A Coming Wedding.

The marriage of James Lyman Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Young of Prospect street, Saugerties, and Miss E. J. Opferkuch of Vineland, N. J., will take place next Sunday, December 16.

Young-Quick.

A very pretty wedding took place at the Accord Reformed Church on Saturday, December 1st, at 3 o'clock, when Miss Leona Isabel Quick, only daughter of Mrs. Luther Quick, was united in marriage to George Dewey Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Young of Alligerville. The marriage was witnessed by a number of friends and relatives. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Leonard M. Braam, pastor of the church. Preceding the ceremony Mrs. Leonard M. Braam sang, "At Dawning," by Cadman, and "Beloved It Is Morn," by Aylward. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march, also played by Mrs. Braam. The ushers, Arthur Depuy, Harry Lawrence, Harold Davis and Ross Schoonmaker entered first, followed by the bridesmaids, Mrs. Ross Schoonmaker, the Misses Margaret and Josephine Barley, cousins of the bride, and Miss Jennie Young, sister of the groom. At the altar the ushers and bridesmaids joined the minister, bridegroom and best man, J. Sanford Cross of Kyserike. The bridesmaids were followed by the maid of honor, Miss Elizabeth Barley, cousin of the bride. Then the bride, entered on the arm of her uncle, Charles R. Dixon of Kingston, who gave her in marriage. The bride was lovely in white crepe back satin, trimmed with lace panels. Her bridal veil of tulle was caught with a wreath of orange blossoms and she carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The maid or honor wore coral crepe de chine, trimmed with silver and carried pink carnations. The bridesmaids were also dressed in crepe de chine; Mrs. Schoonmaker in yellow, Miss Margaret Barley, pink, Miss Josephine Barley in blue and Miss Young in orchid. Each carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations. The church was prettily decorated with evergreens and laurel. Following the ceremony an informal reception was held at the home of the bride, where refreshments were served to a number of friends and relatives. The bride performed her first act of hospitality by cutting the wedding cake for the guests. Mr. and Mrs. Young will reside at Accord upon their return from a wedding trip spent in Connecticut and Massachusetts. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts and sums of money. The young couple have the well wishes of a host of friends.

EGGS AROUSE GEORGIA.

It is apparently true, as stated many years ago by an eminent American statesman, that the tariff is a local issue. Almost every citizen and almost every statesman considers the question more from the standpoint of local interest than of national interest. This is unfortunate but it is a fact nevertheless. A great multiplicity and variety of interests made the North vary strongly for protection in politics. Few interests and those chiefly in the production of raw materials made the South anti-protection. Changing conditions have served to change the Southern viewpoint.

From time to time one may observe in Southern newspapers very impressive evidences of the change in the Southern viewpoint. For instance, in a recent issue of the Atlanta Constitution is a letter from a Georgia farmer commenting upon a shipment of 500 cases of eggs from China received at Savannah to be marketed in Georgia. This farmer inquires "Why does Georgia have to import eggs from China when you can hatch chickens every month in the year in Georgia?" The answer is clear. Eggs are imported from China because the Chinese farmer maintains such a low standard of living and is willing to accept such small compensation for his labor that he can ship his product to the United States and pay the import duty thereon and still sell at a lower figure than the American farmer is willing to accept.

The Republican tariff rates on agricultural products were fixed almost entirely at the behest of spokesmen for the agricultural interests. It is apparent, however, that the rate on eggs is not high enough to shut out entirely the imports from China. Perhaps it is not desirable to shut them out entirely, for a duty high enough for that purpose would be prohibitive and would be subject to general criticism. Suffice it to say that the imports of Chinese eggs landed either at Savannah, or Seattle, or San Francisco are not nearly so large under the Republican tariff as they would be if we adopted the Democratic theory of low tariffs or free trade.

In this connection it is also pertinent to note that this same Georgia farmer asserts that what Georgia needs is farmers from northern Europe such as have located in North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Nebraska. There is a very good reason why Georgia has not been attractive to that class of immigrants. Those people have gone into the Northwest and have been accepted into full citizenship. From among them there have been chosen state legislators, state governors, Congressmen and Senators. Not one of those men could go into a Southern state and get elected to any local office, to say nothing of his being sent to the United States Congress. Whenever the South is willing to abandon its policy of isolation, of exclusiveness, of partisan prejudices, or ostracism of newcomers, that section will attract the kind of people it needs for its industrial and commercial development.

DOLL PLAYING FOR BOYS.

According to Professor Johnson of the Harvard Graduate School, dolls "educate the heart and will even more than the intellect" and boys as well as girls ought to get the benefits to be derived from playing with them. Of course this latest startling utterance from a college professor will cause protest. Through representatives of the National Women's party may be pleased because of their interest in "equal rights" and the sweeping away of all distinctions between the sexes, conservative persons will be disturbed and some of them inclined to ask: Are not American boys already being feminized by instruction from women teachers only, and what is to become of them if, on top of everything, they are encouraged to play with dolls? And yet it is quite possible to give logical reasons why a boy may play with dolls—of a kind—without harm and with real benefit. It is on record that the Arabs, a virile race of warriors, have long delighted to play with dolls in their youth, Mahomet being no exception.

In the popular conception a doll is an imitation baby and in nursing it a girl cultivates the maternal instinct. Many do this and many also cultivate the love of finery by dressing their little effigies as great ladies. But the fact of importance is that there are dolls and dolls—Teddy Bears, soldiers and pugilists as well as "babies." A boy could have a dragon-slaying Siegfried, a Napoleon Bonaparte, and even a Babe Ruth. He could have dolls or marionettes of great variety and make them enact a play of his own composition, thus cultivating the imagination and the inventive or creative instinct. Already little boys are encouraged to play with "soldiers." We need only employ the more general term, marionette or puppet, in lieu of the more particular term, doll, in order to remove the objection.

FOLLOWING IN BABY'S FOOTSTEPS.

I was reading the directions of a medicine for children the other day. The mother was instructed to immediately stop all food, to give the child a dose of castor oil, the next day to give some nourishing liquid food, but not milk, and then administer this medicine.

Now I don't remember the name of the medicine, but I couldn't help but reflect upon the wisdom of the writer of the advertisement. You are feeling just a little out of sorts, you don't feel like eating anything. You are not sick, but just have a heavy "don't care" feeling.

Perhaps a slight headache. The thought of food doesn't really repel you, but when the meal hour comes, you just don't want any of it.

What's the advice?

Just the same as for the baby.

Abstain from all food for a day or even two days. You'll live that long.

In the meantime a healthy dose of castor oil to carry off accumulated wastes or irritating formations in the intestine.

And finally come back to the regular articles of diet gradually. While the milk diet is perhaps our most useful food, there are so many people who dislike it, or with whom it does not agree, that other light foods must be used.

It really doesn't matter very much just what you use, but the quantity at each meal must be small.

And finally the medicine to give.

Well, this is where I'll have to break away from the advertisement and be different.

In what way?

Why by not giving any medicine whatever. You have stopped piling in the offending material, you have rid yourself of its products, and you are gradually getting your strength of stomach, and strength of body back by eating lightly of proper foods.

The job is finished.

Why pour in some medicine?

HIGHLAND

Highland, Dec. 13.—The Auxiliary held its meeting Friday, December 7th, at the home of Mrs. Fred Decker on Grand street, where she, with Mrs. F. A. Coons, Mrs. John Fisher and Mrs. D. H. Knatz, were the hostesses of the occasion. Over 50 were present and one new member was admitted, Miss Miller. This was the last meeting of 1923 and it was a delightful one. Everything by way of business was finished for the year and all was satisfactory. The past year has been one of intense interest and prosperity and the meeting was successful both in point of attendance and the inspiration, encouragement and assistance that has been shown through every department of work. At this meeting the election of officers took place for the ensuing year. The president resigned and Mrs. C. J. Elting was appointed to take charge of nominations and election of a president. Mrs. R. H. Decker was nominated and unanimously re-elected president for her 26th year, an honor that any woman might be justly proud of. As she accepted, the applause gave evidence of her popularity. She has the honor of being an active officer and worker in many societies and fraternal orders of this place and all know that with her guiding hand at the helm, all will go well. The vice-presidents were re-elected and one new one added, Mrs. Edward Rhodes in place of a deceased member. Corresponding secretary, recording secretary and treasurer, sunshine, house, social and membership with board of managers all succeeded themselves for the ensuing term, and the collectors of dues were also re-elected. The president expressed her appreciation of the courtesy and honor bestowed upon her and also acknowledged the loyal and earnest support and cooperation of her club members and solicited the continuance of the same. The Rev. F. A. Coons who with his wife always conducts the devotional exercises, paid a glowing tribute to the president and her co-workers and certainly happy recollections will always cluster around the name of the Auxiliary Club. With ideal weather and grand associations combined added interest to the annual session. After problems had been solved, the social part was enjoyed. The hostesses of the afternoon served finger rolls, Boston baked beans, catsup, pickles, currant jelly and most delicious home made cake in many varieties, and coffee. After the strenuous meeting all were hungry and just enjoyed the eatables. Long after the shades of night had fallen the happy party left the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Decker with many expressions of pleasure to them and the entertainers who made so pleasant the last meeting of 1923.

Sunday morning and evening's sermons by the Rev. F. A. Coons at the M. E. Church were both as usual grand. The themes, "A Promise for Daily Need" and "At the Wits' End," were handled finely and a deep and lasting impression was left upon all present.

SQUIRRELS SWIM RIVERS ON WAY TO NUT COUNTRY

There was an unusual migration of grey squirrels in this state this fall which appears to have been due to the lack of suitable food. Squirrels were seen in large numbers in the southern part of the state moving toward the Pennsylvania border, while reports from the northern part of the state indicate that squirrels were coming in from Canada. One sportsman reported to Protector Hirsch that he had seen eighteen grey and black squirrels swimming the Allegany River at one time and they seemed to be travelling south towards Pennsylvania.

LANDIS PUTS BAN JOHNSON ON PAN

Ban's Ambitions To Put Skids Under Baseball's Czar Are Squelched And He Gets A Memorable Verbal Lashing.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, Dec. 13.—As the Pacific Coast league and the American Association went into session today baseball tongues were still wagging in an amazed chorus over the thoroughly conclusive manner in which Judge Landis excoriated Ban Johnson in forever defeating the latter's plans to regain prestige and power in the major leagues. The victory of Landis was complete and made it even more memorable to Johnson by probing deep under Ban's hide with a search of mental darts that cut, stung and rankled.

It was said by men who attended the joint meeting that Landis's arraignment was as severe a piece of tongue lashing as it was their desire to see and hear. For reasons best known to himself, Johnson, who usually knows something about taking care of his end of such a duel, made no attempt to reply to Landis, it is said. He accepted the defeat and his gratuitous dressing down without comment.

Meantime reports were wafted from behind the closed doors of the two minor league meetings that the draft would be restored in one way or another. It is understood that both the coast league and the American Association favor the return of the draft under what is known as the Western League Plan. The International league, however, is understood to reckon itself superior to such a proposition.

The matter brought down to real business matter later in the day when Clark Griffith, of Washington, and Barney Dreyfus, of Pittsburgh acting as a special committee, are due for a conference with the minors on the draft question.

Barney also expects to put in a reasonably active day disposing of Rabbit Maranville, the non-refillable shortstop. One report had it that Maranville is to find himself back with the Boston Braves before tomorrow. Just how the Braves feel about it has not been divulged.

Charley Hollocher, the Cubs' shortstop, was at one time reckoned as trading companion to the Rabbit; but little has developed along this line, largely because the tip has gotten out that Hollocher's health or lack of the same, has made of him a very precarious investment.

Of course, the Hornsby deal has not been allowed to languish where the trade winds blow. The morning was still an infant when they had Hornsby traded to both the New York Giants and the Chicago Cubs. Some color was lent these rumors by the fact that Branch Rickey, who neglected to remove his chin from the general vicinity of Hornsby's fist last summer, is said to have admitted to friends that he intended to part with the star, in spite of a rumor to the contrary. Meanwhile, it was said that the Chicago Cubs were trying to sign Kid Gleason, former White Sox manager as coach, but without success. The kid is believed to be a very sick man and may not identify himself with baseball in any way next season.

The Yankees were inclined to follow the example the Giants set them in the Groves business by lifting an austere eyebrow at Jake May and the Vernon Club. The Yanks want May but not at the price demanded. However, it is possible that Bill Essick may moderate his figures a trifle just to see what will happen. Probably nothing will.

Casing-Head Gas.

Casing-head gas has been made since 1904. An oil which has the faculty of absorbing gasoline from natural gas is sprayed downward through a tall pipe or tower, while the natural gas coming out at the top is practically without gasoline, while the oil at the bottom has absorbed it. Then, by a simple process of distillation, the gasoline is derived from the oil, and the oil goes through the same operation again. A good-sized plant can treat 80,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas this way, and obtain at least 8,000 gallons of gasoline a day.

Jan. 16 Industrial Safety Day

Mayor Crane has received a copy of the proclamation issued by Governor Smith setting aside Wednesday, January 16, as Industrial Safety Day, and requesting that on that day, throughout the state, every industrial, civic, educational and social organization cooperate with the state department of labor and participate in fitting observance of the day, calling attention to the great human waste that now occurs, concentrating effort on educating the public to its menace and devising methods for preventing it.

In his proclamation, Governor Smith states that "Preventable accidents in industrial establishments year by year waste thousands of lives. Only last year more than 1,300 persons lost their lives and nearly 300,000 were permanently or temporarily injured. The suffering and misery entailed by these accidents and by industrial diseases, not only for the individual but for the family, cannot be estimated. Frequently the incapacitation of the bread winner leads to the disintegration of the entire family. The cost to industry in dollars and cents amounts to many millions of dollars which must be paid in compensation to the injured and their families. Over and above this is the terrible cost to the community in the needless handicap thus imposed on its citizens.

"Intelligent cooperation between employers, workers and the public may prevent much of this loss. The state department of Labor has entered upon a campaign of education to endeavor to cut down the toll of such accidents. The public mind should be focused upon these conditions in our industrial system and upon preventing them. It would, therefore, be well to set aside a day in the year when all concerned therewith throughout the state—employers, wage earners and their families, and the public generally—may turn their thoughts to how best to make intelligent use of methods for the prevention of these accidents."

FEDERAL CHURCH COUNCIL MEETS

Klan Denounced by Presbyterian Representative—Lynching on Decline Reports Dr. Haynes.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 13.—Declarations that the Ku Klux Klan is the "greatest menace to better relations between the negroes and whites," that the past 12 months "have made a golden year in the lynching record of the country," and that "much of sectarian animosity among the churches has passed away," were made here today by speakers at the annual meeting of the executive committee of the Federal Council of Churches.

Today's speakers included Bishop Thomas Nicholson, of Chicago, of the Methodist Episcopal Church; Mrs. W. E. Winsborough, St. Louis, superintendent of the Women's Auxiliary of the Presbyterian Church in the United States (South), and Dr. George E. Haynes, New York, a secretary of the commission on race relations, Federal Council of Churches.

"The Ku Klux Klan is armed anarchy, breaking up homes, terrorizing communities, torturing and slaying victims and accomplishing its diabolical purposes with covered face," asserted Mrs. Winsborough, discussing the question. "How can church join in larger service to the movement for inter-racial cooperation and good will?"

"This organization (Ku Klux Klan) is reaching its terrible tentacles into every state in the Union," Mrs. Winsborough continued. "The time for inaction has passed. If this monster is to be crushed, it must be done by the Christian people of America. If we who believe that 'principle has made of one blood all nations of the earth,' remain silent in the face of so great an evil the very stones themselves will cry out against us.

"Mob violence in its naked reality is unlovely enough to repel honest men, but the Ku Klux Klan clothes mob law under the guise of benefaction."

Indications are that this year will have only half as many lynchings as took place in 1922, according to a statement presented by Dr. Haynes on behalf of the committee on race relations, of which J. J. Egan, Atlanta, is chairman. If these indications are correct, 1923 will have the least number of lynchings of any year since records have been adequately kept.

Dr. Haynes told of the campaign of education against lynching carried on by the churches and said that, in the first six months this year there were only 14 lynchings in the United States, 13 of them being negro victims. In the first half of 1922 there were 30 lynchings and 33 in the six months of 1921, he declared.

MRS. LITT AND BRANAUGH DENY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Catskill, Dec. 13—Emphatic denial that his client, Mrs. Esther Litt, of Brooklyn, N. Y., was in any way connected with the murder of her seven-year-old nephew, Howard Rothenberg, of Newark, N. J., strangled to death while vacationing at Windham, was made by Edward W. Lackey, an attorney, today.

Burtsell Branaugh, at whose home the Rothenberg boy, his mother, and Mrs. Litt were vacationing, also denied he had any knowledge of how the child came to his death.

The denials follow the report of the Greene county grand jury which announced it had voted indictments against a man and a woman. The names of those indicted were kept secret. Arrests were to be made tomorrow when the indictments will be presented to Supreme Court Justice Howard.

Before leaving for Albany, where he will make a report to Governor Smith in connection with the case, District Attorney Charles Coffin said: "Vast sums of money have been spent to charge an innocent 16-year-old girl with this crime."

POLICE GYM TO OPEN SHORTLY

Alderman William B. Martin of the building committee of the common council stated today that the apparatus for the gymnasium for the police department would be here within a few days. Some of the apparatus has already been obtained. The shower baths will be installed shortly. Local plumbers have been figuring on the job and the bids will be opened and contract awarded later in the week. The gym will be located in the room on the first floor that was occupied by the board of health until it moved into its present quarters on the opposite side of the hall. Since then the room has been used for Red Cross work, but it is understood that the Red Cross workers will be given a room in the Municipal Building on East O'Reilly street.

ORCHARD GLEANINGS

Pruning Fruit Trees Is Job for Dormant Season

The pruning of fruit trees and small fruits which grow in this state may be done at any time during the dormant season. The fruiting characteristic of any plant should be borne in mind in pruning the same. By fruit habit is meant the age of the wood upon which the fruit is regularly borne. Low headed trees are better adapted to Oklahoma conditions than high headed trees. In other words, trees with low branches are preferable in this state on account of being less apt to sun scald, stand the wind better and are more easily and cheaply cared for. Where one-year trees or whips are set out of stone fruits such as peaches, cherries, etc., they should be cut back to a height of from 18 to 24 inches. Where such trees are branched cut the top back to the height just mentioned. Also cut the branches back until about one-third of the original length is left, but in case of very small branches cut them back until about two or three buds are left. Subsequent pruning for the next two years should consist of cutting the branches back about one-third, leaving about four original scaffold limbs.

In case of apples and pears the fruit is borne as a rule on two-year-old wood or older. Remove all broken or cross limbs and thin the remainder so that the light and sun may penetrate the interior of the trees. Otherwise the fruit spurs of the interior will sooner or later become shaded out. Do not cut back the ends of limbs of apples as this will produce excessive branching at the end which will exclude the light. In removing an apple limb cut it back to where it branches from another branch or trunk. Where large limbs are removed let the would dry for a few days and then paint it over with whatever available paint there is on the place.

Peaches are borne on one-year-old wood only. Remarks concerning the removing of crossed or dead limbs apply to the peach. Where the peach limbs are too thick thin them out. The annual pruning of a peach should consist of cutting back about one-half at last year's growth. In this way the peaches will be thinned and the portion of last year's wood left will branch the current growing season, thus increasing the fruiting wood for another year and at the same time keep the fruit near the main portion of the tree. Japanese plums are pruned the same as peaches; the other species will only require the removing of dead or crossed limbs and the thinning of limbs where too thick. These remarks apply equally to the cherry. —By D. C. Mooring, Extension Horticulturist, Oklahoma A. and M. College.

Carefully Set Nursery Stock for Best Results

Nursery stock which is worth buying is worth proper planting and care. Even if the nurseryman has guaranteed to replace stock which does not grow the first year, it is to the advantage of every planter to care properly for the plants. Even if the plants are replaced, the grower is out the time spent in planting, and the greater loss—one year's growth and development in the plant.

Get the stock as soon as possible after it arrives at your station. Don't wait until it is convenient if plants in the best condition are desired. Open the package at once and determine the condition of the plants or trees. If planting is to be delayed several days, heel-in the stock to prevent the roots drying out. If already dry, soak the roots in water for 15 to 20 minutes before heeling-in.

The treatment for nursery stock varies with the kind of plant or tree, but the foregoing statements apply to all up to planting time. And the fall of the year has been found by the University of Missouri College of Agriculture the best time of year to set many of the hardy plants, shrubs and trees. If a start with sour cherries is to be made, it is particularly important that they be set this fall. All varieties of apples will do well if fall-set. Peaches, and others of the less hardy varieties will do best if planted in the spring. November is usually a good time for setting the hardy fruit trees.

Most planters send their orders early to the nurseryman so as to get better service and better stock. If fall plantings are not to be made, but spring plantings are desired, bear in mind that the nurseryman should have your order well in advance of the shipping date.

There is no farm so poor but that it can return a nice profit in a few acres of well-planted and tended fruit trees. Every homestead should have the benefits of a small orchard to supply the family needs at least.

Consider Lime Sulphur Best to Control Scale

Spraying fruit trees with lime sulphur has been so general throughout the country during the last few years that entomologists now consider this treatment the universally accepted method for controlling scale insects. One spraying with lime sulphur during the dormant season each year is keeping the scale under control in fruit belts wherever the pest is found. Trees are so badly infested in many orchards that they die if neglected.

TESTIMONY IN CROSSING CASE

Employes In Charge of Trolley Car State That Gates Were Not Down When Car Approached But Were Lowered When the Car Was About To Cross Tracks.

No additional cases will be taken up in supreme court this week and the jurors not engaged in the trial of the present cases, Margaret O'Brien and Lena Tonsky against the director general of railroads and the Kingston Consolidated Railroad, were excused until Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The cases which are now on trial will not be concluded before the end of the week. The two cases are being tried together. Both grew out of the collision between the paper train on the West Shore railroad and a trolley car on the morning of March 4, 1918, at the Broadway crossing.

The trolley car was in charge of Conductor William Beadle and Motorman Roe. Both testified to the effect that the gates were not down when the trolley car approached but were lowered as the car was about to enter upon the tracks. Conductor Beadle who was in the rear of the car as it approached the crossing testified that he was standing up and noticed the gate on the northeast side of the crossing coming down when the car was almost on the tracks. The gate came down and an instant later he said the crash came. He noticed the gate come down by the front vestibute but did not see the train until the instant of the crash.

Master Mechanic William C. Klein, who was summoned to remove the wreck after the accident, testified that he examined the car and found a mark on the vestibule of the car which extended down to a point where a piece of the gate was found in the side of the trolley car. He said the mark was of paint of a lead color which corresponded with the color of the piece of the gate which was found in the side of the car. Marks which appear in photographs taken after the accident he explained were made by a cable which he attached to the wrecked trolley car to haul it out of the way so that traffic could be resumed.

On the car the morning of the accident were an unusually large number of people for the early morning trip. Several of them were on their way to the station to take the train which collided with the car.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

At the Opera House today the vaudeville bill includes John O'Malley, well known Irish tenor. There are also four other acts of various entertainers. In conjunction with the vaudeville will be shown, "The Flying Dutchman" Wagner's opera which has been adapted to the screen and produced by Lloyd Carleton. This picture will be shown until Saturday.

"Hell's Hole", featuring Charles Jones, will be shown at the Keeney Theatre tonight. Others of screen fame in the production are Ruth Clifford, Maurice Flynn, Kathleen Key, Hardy Kirkland and Eugene Pallette. It is a William Fox photoplay and is said to as extraordinary as the title implies.

The picture today at the Auditorium is "The Flirt Booth," one of Booth Tarkington's masterpieces of the screen.

Through an error in printing of cards which have been distributed for Thomas Meighan in "Woman-Proof" the dates of the appearance at The Orpheum Theatre should have read December 17, 18 and 19, instead of November 17, 18 and 19.

New vaudeville at The Orpheum Theatre today comprising six vaudeville acts de luxe, every one a circuit act, including novelty, character impersonation, singing and dancing and trampololone acrobats. The picture, "Why Women Re-Marry," with Milton Sills. The story is concerned with the lives of four wives, each one of whom demands something from marriage which she did not get. Not all women marry and re-marry for the same reason, asserts this picture, and the way in which each woman works out her destiny in this novel story by Van A. James, proves it.

LABORITES PLAN BALDWIN'S DEFEAT

And to Secure Funds for Election, Which Would Follow—Premier Confers With King.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, Dec. 13.—Premier Baldwin was again received in audience today by King George at Buckingham Palace. It was understood they discussed the political situation.

Members of the Labor party already have taken steps to prepare for the political war which they expect will follow soon after parliament convenes. A campaign has been started to secure funds for the next election which the Laborites anticipate must follow their taking over the government.

The Daily Herald, official Labor organ, which had been fated to close down the end of the year, will likely continue to circulate.

It is probable that the Laborites will attempt to overthrow the Tories after King George makes his address, opening parliament. If the king, with Premier Stanley Baldwin cooperating, can frame a noncontentious speech, the defeat of the Tories may be deferred. But King George has not yet shown any disposition to attempt to save the Tory government.

Some Tory "die hards" are now openly maneuvering for a coalition, but it is believed their task will prove fruitless.

The Laborites are expected to devote their entire efforts toward solving the unemployment situation after parliament convenes, leaving the matter of capital levy and other questions for futur econsideration.

RUM SHIPS NOW NUMBER THIRTY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 13.—Coast guard officials declared today that three additional vessels had joined the rum fleet off Atlantic Highlands, New Jersey. The fleet, it said, now numbers 23 and probably a dozen others are deployed as far south as Asbury Park and off the Long Island shore, making a total of more than 30 whiskey bearing boats.

Estimates place the value of holiday booze in "Rum Row" at $5,000,000.

"Some of the ships are carrying 4,000 to 5,000 cases," coast guard men said.

Prohibition authorities announced that despite their efforts, much whiskey and beer was coming into the state from Canada.

GOVERNOR ASKS FOR FORSYTHE CROSSING DATA.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 13.—Governor Smith today wrote a letter to the New York State Public Service Commission requesting detailed information regarding the order issued by the commission in 1922 calling for the elimination of the crossing at Forsythe, N. Y., which is still being held up by court procedure.

Nine dives were snuffed out last Sunday morning in a wreck of the New York Central's Twentieth Century Limited at the Forsythe crossing.

The governor said the wreck of the Twentieth Century probably would play an important part in his message to the 1924 legislature regarding the elimination of grade crossings in this state.

"I want to study this carefully and probably will incorporate some of it in my message to the lawmakers on grade crossings," the governor said.

After the public service commission had ordered that an overhead bridge be substituted for the Forsythe crossing, the Nickel Plate Railroad, whose tracks parallel the Central at that point, applied for a rehearing.

The application for a rehearing was denied by the commission and the Nickel Plate then secured a writ enjoining the commission from further proceedings. The case was taken to the courts for review and still is pending.

Despite the immense amount of money which the state would be called upon to expend, Governor Smith believes that all of the dangerous grade crossings should be eliminated as quickly as possible.

MASCARENAS SAYS FEW CONSULS ARE DISAFFECTED

New York, Dec. 13.—F. Alvarez, Mexican consul at St. Louis who resigned to support the cause of Adolfo De La Huerta, rebel leader, will gain little following, Alberto Mascarenas, Mexican consul general here declared today.

The thirteen consuls here under his jurisdiction have pledged continued support of the Obregon government and repudiated the claims of De La Huerta, Mascarenas declared.

His jurisdiction included, Boston, Philadelphia, Norfolk, Indianapolis

FIND NO TRACE OF FRENCH COLONISTS

Recent Discoveries in Florida Indicate Massacre.

Bones of white men in an Indian burial mound on Miami beach and a few scant traces of an apparent French settlement near Lemon City, Fla., have aroused the speculation of citizens and scientists of Florida. The mysterious origin and fate of the settlement have given renewed interest to old legends that have survived on the Florida coast through the centuries.

Edward F. Flannery, writing in the Miami Herald, describes stone steps discovered some time ago in Garden Isle Park, buried under debris. They have been carved out of the natural coral formation there. The steps lead from a lower level of ground which is at present the same level as the shore of Little river, to a higher level of ground. There four steps are carved in an artistic way entirely different from anything likely to have been constructed by Indians. Nearby in the same rock is cut an opening which evidently served as an oven.

Across Biscayne bay from this apparent site of a colony is an Indian burial mound, which contains skeletons of white men, scientists who have made a study of them assert.

Verney W. McVeigh, on whose estate the stone steps were discovered, has concluded that a French settlement was established there late in the Fifteenth century, from a party which left St. Augustine. History shows that St. Augustine had some internal troubles at that time which resulted in the migration of discontented factions to Southern Georgia, and it is possible that some went to other parts of Florida.

Mr. McVeigh believes there existed in the vicinity of Little river a race of Indians which subsequently disappeared. They are often characterized as mound builders.

From the faint evidences remaining, some have reasoned that the Indians were about to attack the settlement, and that the women and children and older men were sent across the bay. The Indians, victorious in the battle, crossed the bay and massacred those who had fled, burying the bodies after their own customs.

Another assumption is that the colony was exterminated by pirates. Many years ago, it is said, a pirate of the Spanish Main retired to a little home in Orlando, and told his oldest son of how he and other pirates massacred a French colony near what is now Miami beach. Recent discoveries have tended to give support to this old legend.

None of the old coast legends have explained how the colony came into being. In addition to the theory that it was formed by people from St. Augustine, there is support for the conjecture that colonists from Haiti may have founded the settlement in the troublous times of Toussaint l' Overture.

Owns Presidents' Eyeglasses.

Eyeglasses worn by nine presidents of the United States are owned by Dr. Frederick A. Stengel of Marion, whose chief hobby is collecting curios. The oldest pair in the group is that which surmounted Thomas Jefferson's nose in 1801, when Jefferson was fifty-eight. Doctor Stengel purchased the glasses from an aged Virginian who lived near Monticello, Jefferson's home. This pair has a metal frame. Of contemporary interest is President Harding's first pair, which Stengel himself fitted, when that president was editor of the Marion Star and never dreamed of some day becoming the chief executive. Harding selected a shell frame, Oxford style, when it became necessary to reinforce his vision. Glasses used by Theodore Roosevelt, too, who was nicknamed "Four Eyes" when as a beardless youth he sought to recover his health on a western ranch, are in Stengel's collection. In the collection are spectacles which belonged to Grover Cleveland, William McKinley, James A. Garfield, William H. Harrison, James K. Polk and Rutherford B. Hayes.

Then the Editor Beat It.

This from the "Personal" column of the Altoona Tribune:

"Having been associated with Arkansawyers, Missourians and Oklahomans most all of our life, we occasionally say 'you-all,' 'we-uns,' 'you-uns,' etc. Two young lady school teachers were callers at this office Monday, and in order to be friendly, we asked them in our native tongue, 'How are you-uns this morning?' They both spoke up and said, 'That ain't proper grammar.' We felt so little about it that we crawled under the press and slept all afternoon."

Different.

"It says here," remarked Mrs. Johnson, in the midst of her reading, "that the man who takes a cold bath every morning, summer and winter, is the peacock of the human race."

"The which?" asked Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge.

"The peacock—the proudest person."

"Huh! He hain't no peacock. He's a thundering liar!"

What It Meant to Her.

"How strange," murmured the sweet young thing as she looked the interior of the bank over with a critical eye, "how strange."

"What is strange?" asked a bystander.

"That sign over there. Why don't they made it read, 'Information' instead of 'Teller.'"—Toronto Globe.

ZOO NEWS

"What is the news?" asked the Camel.

"The lioness just had a tooth pulled," said the Zebu with the two humps.

"I heard a great roaring some time ago," said the Camel. "Was that what was bothering the lioness?"

"Oh, she feels all right now. Her jaw feels a bit sore, of course, but the toothache has all gone, for the tooth has gone.

"She was roaring with the toothache. That was the trouble."

"Oh, I see," said the Camel.

"Any other news?" asked the Camel after a moment, as she moved her mouth from side to side as though she were chewing.

"None that I know of," said the Zebu. "Oh, yes, come to think of it, I have some news."

"Well," said the Camel, "why didn't you think in the first place?"

"Now look here, Cam," said the Zebu, "don't be so fussy or I won't tell you the news."

"Oh, very well," said the Camel quite pleasantly. "I would like to hear the news."

"They say that they're bringing to the zoo some of the smaller animals

"I Would Like to Hear the News."

such as a flying squirrel, a chipmunk, a few rats."

The Zebu stopped for a moment.

"You're supposed to say 'Oh, rats!' when I say that.

"And then I am supposed to answer, 'Yes, rats!'"

"Why should I go to all that trouble?" asked the Camel.

"Just for fun," said the Zebu. "But no matter. I see you don't want to make any silly little jokes.

"Perhaps it is just as well.

"Then there is to arrive in the zoo a white-footed mouse, a bat, I believe, and a long-eared owl.

"Of course this is just what I hear. I can only tell you that.

"I believe a new Red Fox is coming to the zoo, too, and that the fox has sent word that he must have good food awaiting him of both meat and fruit.

"He also has sent word that he is bringing his mate with him.

"They're clever—those red foxes—and very smart—but they're good to each other, I'm told. Yes, Fox mates are always very happy together.

"I don't believe I have any more news for you," the Zebu said.

"Well," said the Camel, "you've done very well. I couldn't do any better. In fact, I haven't had any news to tell you.

"But then, of course, I have been so much interested in watching my small son grow up into being a fine Camel like his Daddy that I haven't paid much attention to anything that was going on.

"I just thought today I'd like to know what the news in the zoo really was. As a matter of fact, I've thought there was no other news in the zoo except that of the birth of my son.

"That happened some time ago, too. But still it seems like news to me, great and glorious and wonderful news.

"I have been able to think of nothing else."

"I know that," smiled the Zebu. "I am in the yard next to you. I know you haven't been interested in anything or anyone else.

"Your son has been the most important thing to you."

"But he's not a 'thing,'" said the Camel.

"You'll admit he is important, won't you?" asked the Zebu.

"Oh, that is very different," grinned the Camel, as she turned to her son. "Of course you're important. You're the most important Camel that ever lived. And you are your mother's pride and her camel joy!"

Dad Choked on This One.

The family was at dinner. It was just after Mary's return from the summer camp and naturally she was the cynosure of all eyes, as any young lady of sixteen summers is likely to be.

And how did you enjoy yourself?" asked Uncle Tom.

"Just fine," said Mary, "except that at one time the superintendent thought I had appendicitis."

"And did they cut out your athletics?" asked mother.

Now See Here, Run Along.

Bobby had been asking questions of his father all afternoon, and the parent grew impatient.

"Pop, can I ask one more question?" said the boy, persistently.

"I s'pose so," mused the parent, reading his paper with a frown.

"Well, pop, who's gonna preach the funeral for the last man on earth?"

MEATS OF VARIOUS KINDS

A savory dish of meat is usually the substantial and most enjoyed dish on the menu. Here are a few ways to vary the common meats:

Spare Rib With Sauer Kraut.—Select a good rib with enough meat on it to furnish the family amply. Roll it around a quart or two of sauer kraut, season the spare ribs and bake in a moderate oven for three or four hours. Serve on a hot platter with the spare rib on top of the kraut.

Deviled Steak.—Take one flank steak. Fry one large onion thinly sliced in two tablespoonfuls of butter. Remove the onion when it is brown. Cut the steak into pieces two inches wide and three inches long, dredge with flour and fry in butter. Remove the steak from the frying pan, add to the butter one teaspoonful each of salt and mustard, three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a tablespoonful of flour. Add two cupfuls of hot water, return the steak to the pan, cover closely and simmer until the steak is very tender. Dish on a hot platter, pour the gravy over it and garnish with fried potatoes.

Veal Loaf.—Take three pounds of lean veal and one-half pound of uncooked ham, chop both very fine, add one teaspoonful of salt and one-half teaspoonful of pepper, three soda crackers rolled fine, then add three beaten eggs, three tablespoonfuls of cream and two tablespoonfuls of boiling water. Mix all together very thoroughly. Grease a bread pan and press the veal mixture well into it. Cover and bake for an hour in a moderate oven. Uncover and brown, baking another half hour.

Pork Chops With Fried Apples.—Place thick pork chops in a frying pan, add enough water to just cover the bottom of the pan. Cook uncovered, turning often, then when the water is evaporated fry brown, seasoning well. In a tablespoonful of fat fry thick slices of unpeeled, cored apple. Sprinkle with salt and sugar and cook until well browned on both sides. Serve in overlapping slices around the chops.

RITCH-WORTMAN PETITION HEARD

By Telegraph to The Freeman

Albany, Dec. 13.—An application by Ritch and Wortman for a certificate for the operation of a bus line between Kingston and Byrne's Corners in Saugerties was opposed at a hearing before Public Service Commissioner Parsons yesterday by the New York Central Railroad, and by Klem and Huber now operating a bus line out of Kingston into the town of Saugerties. Thomas F. Coughlin of Kingston, appeared for the applicants; Visscher, Whalen, Louck and Murphy for the railroad, and Rider and Allen of Albany for Klem and Huber.

The railroad submitted evidence showing the train service conditions in the territory which will be partly served by the proposed bus line, together with revenues received at stations in that vicinity. It was agreed by all the bus operators that there was room for only one bus line to operate profitably. A question was raised as to the right of Klem and Huber to operate over the line as proposed by Ritch and Wortman under the terms.

After the evidence of several witnesses had been taken it was agreed to submit briefs upon the questions raised over the franchise rights of the bus operators.

Dark Teeth Bleached In Three Minutes

Marvelous Discovery—Absolutely Safe—Instantly Dissolves all Stains and Discolorations, Giving Even the Dingiest Teeth a Charming Pearly Whiteness.

No longer is there any need for dull, yellowish stained teeth! For with a new harmless treatment you can now bleach away all stains and dullness in just three minutes—and acquire teeth so pearly white, so charmingly pretty and lustrous that they will be the admiration of all your friends!

The very first application of this new treatment leaves teeth whiter than when scoured an hour by old-fashioned harmful abrasives! Tobacco and other stains disappear almost while you wait!

This remarkable discovery is called Bleachodent Combination. Perfected by a group of prominent dentists, and is absolutely safe in every way. Consists of a marvelous liquid and a new kind of paste. The liquid instantly curdles or softens all surface stains. The paste not only gently removes these softened stains, but if used daily prevents formation of new stains!

The reason Bleachodent Combination whitens teeth with such absolute safety is because it contains certain costly ingredients which act only on staining substances on teeth, not on the enamel itself. By dissolving these stains, it bleaches teeth flashing white, without in any way affecting the softest teeth. Dentists say that only a safe mild preparation like Bleachodent Combination should be used on children's teeth, which are naturally soft and sensitive, and which are so very easily injured by harsh, gritty abrasives.

Surely, nothing detracts from one's appearance quicker than yellowish stained teeth. Yet no matter how discolored the teeth may be, Bleachodent Combination will whiten them in just three minutes, and give them a marvelous flash and sparkle.

Note—Do not expect Bleachodent Combination to remove stains caused by silver fillings. For while it will instantly remove surface stains, it has absolutely no effect on enamel, therefore cannot be expected to remove stains which are a part of the enamel.

Get Bleachodent today for a few cents. Money instantly refunded if not perfectly delighted with results of very first application. Be sure and insist on the Bleachodent Combination. Sold at all good stores, such as

BIG IMMIGRATION CONFERENCE ON

Public Forum in New York to Ascertain Majority Opinion as to Future Restrictions.

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, Dec. 13.—Five hundred delegates, including members of the congressional immigration committee, representatives of England, Belgium, Mexico and the Central European nations, together with members of two score foreign organizations and over two hundred American industrial and commercial institutions met here today to discuss the problem of immigration.

The conference held under the auspices of the National Industrial Conference Board, was in the nature of a public forum.

Questions to be debated included:

1. Shall the present immigration law, expiring June, 1924, be extended?

2. Shall the present percentage restriction of the immigration law be changed?

3 Shall special legislation be enacted to assure better selection of immigrants?

Groups representing foreign nationalities were reported to be prepared to protest vigorously against further reduction of the immigration quotas.

On the other hand the department of labor, together with groups representing middle-western chambers of commerce, planned to urge a further closing of the immigration bars, it was said.

A stenographic report of the conference's progress will be laid before congress as guide to politic sentiment.

Fruit Tests in Hudson Valley

Geneva Station To Experiment With New Varieties and Fertilizer at Several Points.

Officials of the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva announce that arrangements have been largely completed for the horticultural investigations in the Hudson River Valley, which were provided for by special appropriation at the last session of the Legislature. The work of the station horticulturist, H. B. Tukey, who is located at present at Hudson will have to do with soil fertility and soil management studies with the leading classes of fruits and on the principal fruit soils, and with tests of new or noteworthy varieties of fruits or promising new station seedlings under Hudson River Valley conditions. Mr. Tukey spent the past six months looking over the situation in the valley, and following his observations the station authorities are now prepared to make definite arrangements for the work.

In accordance with these plans, land has been leased at Kinderhook, which represents some of the sandier soil of the valley, upon which an apple orchard will be set and various fertilizer treatments begun. Also, near Upper Red Hook on the typical hill apple soils of the region which are similar to other sections of the valley, will be another experiment in fertilizing apple trees; while near Germantown on an even heavier type of soil, characteristic of some of the better soils of the Hudson River Valley, will be begun still other fertilizer studies with apples. This arrangement provides opportunity to test the effect of fertilizers on the three main types of soils found in the valley, say the station officials, so that the results will be applicable to practically any section of the Hudson River Valley. In the vicinity of Hudson, soil fertility studies are to be undertaken with sour cherries, and at Germantown investigations will be begun in fertilizing grapes.

At test planting of promising or new fruits will be made this year at Kinderhook on the lighter soils and where the effect of the river is less pronounced than in other sections; while later it is hoped to make a similar planting on the heavier soils close to the river, possibly in the vicinity of Germantown.

The intention throughout in the formulation of these plans, it is said, has been to develop lines of activity which though necessarily located in a centralized area, will be applicable to the entire Hudson River Valley.

Two Displays at Craft's.

Most artistic displays of various kinds of nuts dried fruits, bottled and canned fruits and confections and other high class articles, just now in especial favor during the Christmas time are shown in the two large show windows of E S Craft & Son, 330 Wall street. The background of one window, being a red brick style fireplace with imaginary fire through clever electric arrangement, is especially noteworthy, while the two displays call for much favorable comment from the people who stop to admire the showing. The artist was Ben Suskind, one of the clerks in the store.

Dr. Washburn on Subnormality

Psychologist Describes Feeble-Minded, Criminal, Neurotic and Insane Varieties of Humanity.

The subject of the lecture given by Dr. Washburn before the Monday and Atbarhacton clubs on Wednesday afternoon at Wiltwyck Inn Hall, was that of persons not normally adjusted to social life, people who are very important to social life however. Such persons, Dr. Washburn superficially divided into four classes: Feeble-minded; criminal; neurotic and insane.

Feeble-minded persons are often not defective in kindly and gentle emotions and instincts, but they are deficient in intelligence and intellect. They cannot think normally and they will never be able to think better than they do now. Their mental development has been arrested. Most often these cases are the result of heredity, but often that sort of heredity that skips a generation. Feeble-mindedness may be the result of disease, such as some form of meningitis, arresting the child's mental development at the period of its illness. The findings of the psychologists prove that two feeble-minded parents cannot have a normal child, though normal parents may have a feeble-minded child.

In using the term "criminal," Dr. Washburn said that discretion should be used. The law says that one who breaks the law is a criminal, but the psychologist says there is a difference between the socially criminal and the legally criminal. Dr. Davenport, an authority, defines the psychologically criminal as the feebly inhibited type, where certain instincts are overwhelming, and which instincts are held in check by the normal person but not by the criminal

The feeble-minded we segregate for their own sakes and safety as we do the insane. The criminal we put away for the sake of society, but the neurotic is right with us, may be "Us" all the time and is of intensest interest to the psychologist.

Characteristic features of the neurotic are childishness, the instinct of dependence persisted in too long; "ego-centricness" and a peculiar sort of ejective consciousness, which makes the neurotic abnormally self-conscious as to what others are thinking of them at all times. They are disturbed over what others may be thinking of them, and are not interested in what others are thinking in order to be interested in their lives or helpful. They can't stand much adversity or trouble. If they cannot have what they want they feel terribly, and their reactions are extremely infantile. They ingeniously dodge reality and responsibility.

Dr. Washburn then explained how the increase or decrease of the fluids of the ductless glands in the human body have much to do with physiological conditions of the body which may cause a neurotic state, and it has been found that since what we think and feel influences the action of those glands, psychologists may actually be helpful to neurotics.

One way in which the neurotic tries to escape responsibility and trouble is through dissociation. The strange fears of the neurotic were spoken of and Dr. Washburn said it often came to light that those fears dated back to the earliest childhood, but if brought to light and recognized by the patient they would disappear.

"The wish-fulfillment phantasy" of the neurotic was explained as illustrated by an account of actual cases, as were many of the other conditions mentioned, making the lecture exceedingly interesting

It has also been found that if a neurotic is cured by suggestion of one idea some other will take its place.

Then there are delusions of persecutions, which being frequent in the normal person who recognizes them as delusions and dismisses them, become serious aggrevations to the neurotic. Dr. Washburn also defined what is technically called "the mechanism of compensation," where both the neurotic and the normal person tries to cover fear or chagrin with some absolutely opposite trait.

This lecture proved so interesting that the time for discussion at the close proved all too short.

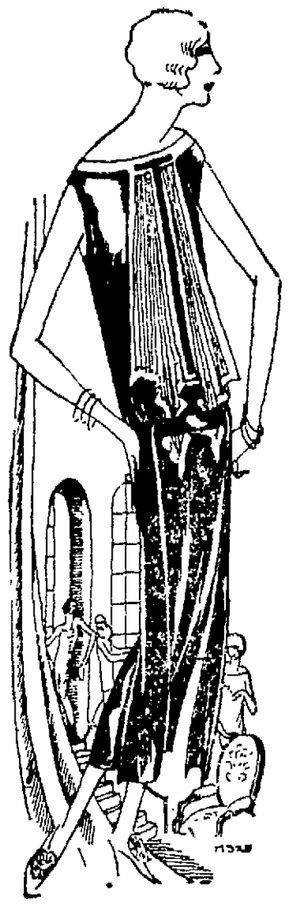
DAILY FASHION FEATURE BY ELEANOR GUNN

Out of the mass of ideas presented in the newest frocks, one of the points which has evolved itself as important, is the use or narrow colored ribbons as trimming. These ribbons, about an inch wide in most cases, are striped lengthwise in several colors. Roman stripe fashion, and dangle from the neck at back or front, from the pockets, or are used for the belt. They serve the same purpose of brightening up a dark dress as do the little Peter Pan collars bound in color, or the narrow bright galons, which are massed as border trimming in some cases

Plain black grosgrain ribbons are also utilized as collar appendages, and some of these are embroidered in little figurines in color on the ends. Buttons are another trimming feature which stands out in the new models, in rows, bone or covered, and not too large.



On a Premet model which has been largely bought for America, the buttons are of carved wood, but it is more usual to have them pearl. While plaids were not greatly in evidence at the openings, the fact that nearly every couture showed something with a plaid suggestion has led to prophecies of a coming season for Scotch patterns This same model is embroidered in a design of beige and brown plaid and the fashion of suggesting this idea by embroidering rather than by the material itself predominated Silk houses, one in particular which is noted for novelties, are including genuine silk plaids in their new collections.

Pleats have returned with a vengeance, and a good deal of favorable comment is heard on Premet's fashion of grouping two sorts of pleats on the same dress.

From Paris comes the report that paradoxically, it seems, the dressmakers are emphasizing straight lines again, and one begins to see more circular flounces Heretofore it was largely on Americans that they were seen, on the ready-made type of dress, but the Parisienne has taken them up for evening although straight lines are still the most popular.

Well Known Hospital Physician Says These Are Some of the Danger Signals of Exhausted Nerve Force—What To Do

One of the most terrible of all human ailments is exhausted nerve force. It weakens all the vital organs of the body and as a result all kinds of alarming symptoms may appear. Some people get nervous indigestion, pains over the eyes, in the heart, and across the small of the back: in others the first symptoms are mental instead of physical—sleeplessness, worry over trifles, or inability to concentrate on your work.

The nervous mother is upset by her children, squabbles with her husband, has frequent fits of the "blues" and bursts into tears over the smallest troubles. In such cases it is worse than useless to waste time taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs; the starving nerve cells must have nerve food which is supplied by the blood. Any physician will tell you that if the blood supply were cut off from any nerve in your body that the nerve would die.

If you have any of the symptoms of nerve force exhaustion, you should at once take steps to enrich your blood. This can be quickly and most effectively accomplished by the free use of Nuxated Iron, which not only increases the activity of the blood making organs, but feeds true red blood food directly to the blood itself and thereby helps to create millions of new red blood cells.

The discovery of organic iron as contained in Nuxated Iron is one of the most valuable red blood making scientific discoveries since the creation of modern medical science, and its effect in helping to create new nerve force and revitalize worn-out, exhausted nerve cells is sometimes most amazing.

Try Nuxated Iron for two weeks and if at the end of that time you have not obtained all and even greater benefits than you expect, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money.

NUXATED IRON INCREASES THE NERVE FORCE AND GIVES NEW STRENGTH AND ENERGY

M. E. LADIES AID ANNIVERSARY

Of Phoenicia Was Celebrated In The M. E. Church Thursday, December 6—Mrs. Bouse Only Surviving Member.

Phoenicia, Dec. 13.—The 45th anniversary of the Ladies' Aid Society was celebrated in the lecture room of the M. E. Church, Thursday afternoon, December 6. Standing upon the threshold of the "Present," and looking down the isle-of-yesterday, the echoes of the "Past" came ringing through the groves of "Time."

Phoenicia was a small settlement and one without any church. At the home of Dr. Winters, December 6, 1878, Mrs. George Graham, Miss Alice Van Demark, Mrs. Philetus Johnson, Mrs. John DuBois, Mrs. Sarah Bouse met with Mrs. Winters. This little band of six, organized a Ladies' Aid. Mrs. Winters was made president. She held this office for nine years.

The aid sponsered a church building Dr. Winters, with others, helped to honor the sentiment of the faithful few. A lot, where the Delamater home now stands, was purchased of the elder Mr. Simpson. Later, Mr. Newton, who owned the land which is now called Church street, donated a lot, and gave $50 toward the church building. The aid accepted it, and Mr. Simpson bought the lot back. New members were added to the Aid. Among them were the Woodland people; the Woodworths, Mrs. Botchford, Mrs. Aaron Elting, and others Marie Longyear was the financial secretary for several years.

In 1883 the M. E. Church was built where it now stands. The District Superintendent, the Rev. Mr. Hawhurst was not in favor of having the church built. He advocated to continue attending church at Chichester, this being on the Shandaken charge. But the ladies caught the vision of the future Phoenicia would grow. The Rev. Mr. Phillips was pastor when the church was dedicated.

The papers and records were placed in the corner stone. It is to be regretted that no copies are in evidence, as it would have been very interesting at this anniversary to be enriched with all the gleanings instead of just a few.

The books containing the financial and membership records are gone, too. The Aid had $500 at the dedication. The first money earned was by a dime social which netted three dollars. This was considered very satisfactory. A canvas was purchased and fastened from the church to the nearest house, under this, supper and socials were held.

Nine years after the church was dedicated, the former District Superintendent Hawkhurst was sent as pastor. In 1890 the parsonage was built. A. Elting built both church and parsonage.

At the close of the nine years of Mrs. Winters' faithful service, Mrs. D. Winnie of Mt. Pleasant accepted the presidency, and served in this capacity for nine years. Mrs. A. Elting, who had been the vice-president, then became president. The other presidents in line were: Mrs. John Elvy, Mrs. G. W. Thompson, wife of the pastor, Mrs. J. A. Hurn, wife of the pastor, Mrs. Barnum, mother of Mrs. Hurn, Mrs. Grant, Mrs. A. J. Simpson, Mrs. Spink, again Mrs. Simpson, and Mrs. Grant, who is now serving in her fourth year as president. Mrs. Bouse and Mrs. John DuBois were the only charter members living in recent years. But Mrs. DuBois died not long since, at her home in Cottekill, leaving Mrs. Bouse the only surviving charter member.

At the anniversary meeting, 36 members were present. The meeting was opened by singing, "To The Work." The Rev. Meeker offered prayer. After the order of business was closed, Mrs. Grant reported $100 as realized from the chicken supper held at A. Whispel's, and thanked the committees and all who helped make it a success. A rising vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Whispel.

The pastor spoke a few words regarding the anniversary. The infant, born 45 years ago was grown and had a membership of 62. The meeting was closed by the Lord's prayer being said in unison.

Mrs. Bouse has served the Aid as secretary for 17 years. As the last of the charter members, she was made the guest of honor, and the pastor placed her at the head of the table, which was spread with a bountiful supply of good things. Mrs. Bouse gave some interesting thoughts and happenings entering into the Aid's life from the day it came into existence. The pastor, in well chosen words expressed the sentiment of the Aid, and the esteem tenderd Mrs. Bouse, and personified it by presenting to her a lovely Cycleman plant, which was a gift from the Aid. Mrs. Bouse who was taken completely by surprise, was much affected as she expressed her thanks for the plant.

All present partook of the supper and afterward enjoyed a social hour as a fitting close to the anniversary.

Dumb Animals and Color.

Scientists differ in their opinions as to whether dumb animals see color. Experiments have been performed with monkeys, chickens, rabbits and rats. In some instances, where the animals apparently responded more readily to one color than to another, it was thought possible that they were affected more by the differences in the intensity of the colors than by the different colors. Latest results indicate that animals do not readily detect color differences.

VALUABLE GIFTS TO KINGSTON CITY LIBRARY

The Library has recently received a number of valuable gifts. Mrs. Williams Carter has presented 66 bound volumes of Blackwood's, one of the most valuable of the English reviews.

From the Hillman estate have come 72 miscellaneous books and 250 unbound magazines, including nearly a complete set of the National Geographic Magazine.

Admiral Higginson always generous to the library, has given six volumes of the proceedings of the New York State Historical Asosciation, rich in local history. The library is building up a notable collection of material relating to the history of Kingston and Ulster county. Some time ago were given given by Judge Hasbrouck the early yearbooks of the Holland Society. The library would be glad to complete this set by the yearbooks from 1915 to 1923. Any book or phamplet relating to the local history of this region will be a welcome gift. The library would also like to secure a set of the Scribner's Monthly (later the Century magazine), and also the Century prior to 1917.

The committee on decorations has decorated the hall in a novel manner and the refreshment committee has erected its booths. Those in charge of the entertainment say they have arranged one of the best entertaining programs ever presented in the hall.

Tickets may be secured for this pre-holiday dance at the hall this evening. An invitation is extended to the public to be present.

SLIPS NOW COMPLEMENT THE OUTER COSTUME.

The costume slip is apparently capable of limitless adaptations and variations, to say nothing of the particular uses to which it is put. Nevertheless, designers are still creating new models to supplement the various new types of blouses and so make complete costumes. Variously draped slips are the most often repeated types for this purpose.

Always ingenious, French designers have now evolved another type of slip and this is one which will supply a lingerie or other neckwear treatment for the costume, a note that has lately come to the fore, at the same time that it provides a foundation.

The sketches above show how the idea is used. The larger figure showing the slip itself, the smaller its use with the costume. For example, the beige slip at the left with straight shoulder straps and a deep vestee, is designed for the three-quarter stitched in navy, is designed to be worn with a navy jacquette; next is a built-up shoulder model with bateau collar and vestee section of lace to be used with a collarless frock to give it the desired lingerie touch; the third slip, really a sleeveless coat, has a roll collar of moire that is very smart as a finish to the slightly draped coat frock with which it is worn, the very last slip with its tucks and appliques, makes a harmonious length blouse which has made its appearance this season.

Slips to be used as part of the outer costume must of course be made of a sufficiently heavy silk, and in the colors popular this season. To be entirely practical, they should, to a degree, be matched up with colors used by dress and blouse makers.

Southwest storm warnings are displayed from Cape Hatteras to Eastport, Maine.

1,000 ALIENS PER DAY SNEAKING IN

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 13—"Certain nations of Europe are recalling the best of their nationals from America and sending back shiploads of undesirables," Henry Fairfield Osborne, president of the American Museum of Natural History, declared today in an address to the national immigration conference.

"The best stock of these nations is depleted," Dr. Osborne said, and they are drawing on the supply that America took and raised and educated.

Great inducements are being offered to Americans to return to the lands from which they emigrated, Dr. Osborne charged, and shiploads are going back.

"Returning ships bring us the lowest grade of their peoples in many cases insane," he said.

"One third of the insane in American hospitals are foreign born or the children of foreign born. New York, the greatest port of entry for the immigrant, has just had spent $50,000,000 for new hospitals for the insane.

Dr. Osborne advocated "selective immigration" with American agents abroad passing on prospective immigrants and "investigating their families for traces of insanity."

Italy and Spain, he said, were the only continental European countries whose best stock has not been depleted by immigration.

The Japanese and Chinese have no place in America, according to Dr. Osborne.

"Their culture may be of the highest," he said, "but they are not attuned to Americanism."

Aliens are being smuggled into this country at the rate of 1,000 a day, according to an estimate made by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis. These figures were made public by the National Industrial Conference Board. According to Davis the foreigners are smuggled over the borders and into port cities. The figures are based upon reports made by field agents who studied the situation along the borders of both Canada and Mexico.

CONGRESSMAN FREAR URGES TRADE WITH RUSSIA

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 13.—Taking issue with President Coolidge's announced opposition to the recognition of the Russian Soviet government by the United States, Congressman James A. Frear, Republican of Wisconsin, in a speech in the house this afternoon urged the imediate resumption of trade relations with Russia and declared that recognition could be accomplished after satisfactory commercial relations were established.

Frear spent several weeks in Russia last summer making a study of economic and political conditions.

Caskill, N. Y., Dec. 13. The third indictment in the murder of Howard Rothenberg, 7 year old boy, was voted today by the Greene county grand jury, it was reliably reported this afternoon.

These indictments will be handed to Superior Court Judge Wesley O. Howard tomorrow and immediately made public, it was understood.

Financial and Commercial

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, Dec. 13.—The stock market displayed firmness at the opening today. Practicaly all classes of shares moved forward, gains running from a fraction to over one point.

Stocks in the forenon trading proceeded to reflect confidence in the industrial revival in a buying movement. News regarding the industries was regarded as extremely bullish. Oils were steady, gains ranging from a fraction to nearly 3 points. Steel stocks continued to recover. Railroad shares scored further recoveries but transactions were in much reduced volume. Industrials were firm.

The market showed strength throughout the afternoon trading. Bullish activities, originated in the steel and motor groups, spread to the sugars, the coppers, the equipments and the tobaccos.

WILLIE KAMM IS TAKING UP GOLF

The baseball season over, players of all the major league teams have dispersed to all corners of the country to spend the winter months as they will. Willie Kamm, the sensational west coast infielder for whom the Chicago White Sox paid $100,000 last season, is back at his California home and is learning to play the ancient Scotch game of golf. Kamm is taking lessons from John McHugh, the California state champion. McHugh, in attractive checkered golf knickers, is showing Kamm the fine points of the game.

May Set Unique Record

If Jackson Mathers, one of the newest members of the Pirate squad, makes good in 1924 he will have established a unique record, as he had but two weeks' pitching experience with Cynthiana in the Blue Grass league before he was sold to the Pirates. Mathers hurled 34 consecutive innings without having a run scored against him.

Baseball Games Are Won With Muscle and Energy

Every year we are told that applied psychology is going to decide the post season baseball series, and every year a few gentlemen with lusty sinews step up to the plate and decide it with their bats, as did the Yankees. Psychology enters largely into golf, but only as a factor in the struggle between the golfer and his own vanity or self control, as the case may be. The writers in the press stand insist that by taking thought a manager may add a couple of hundred cubits to a right-field drive by another man who is facing the pitcher. But it is the hard-hitting of the athlete rather than the hard-thinking of the mental giant on the bench which usually does the business. Nearly all baseball players now talk learnedly of the mental attunement between man and man which is necessary for the highest type of team work. But one usually discovers—if he is deep in baseball literature—that they are quoting from the newspapers of a few days before. On the day of the big game they forget their psychology and put everything they have into their pitching or pegs or clouts. If everything they have is enough, they win. If the other team has more, they lose. The function of mind in baseball is chiefly confined to getting a bunch of likely boys together, giving them the right kind of training and insisting that they get plenty of sleep and cultivate plain living, says the New York Tribune. After that the team does the rest, and does it with muscle and energy.

All Pirates Scattered at Close of the Season

By request of President Dreyfuss of the Pittsburgh club the Pirates agreed to do no barnstorming stunts, but scattered immediately upon the close of the season. The argument was put up to them that they were well paid for their season's work and would only cheapen themselves by cavorting in the sticks for a few extra dollars. It is a tribute to the intelligence of the players that they saw the point.

So accurate is the work of American government assayists that many foreign countries are said to have large deposits of United States coinage bullion in their gold reserve in preference to that of their own manufacture.

(Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.)

Off the northeastern point of Africa at the entrance to the Gulf of Aden, like a chip fallen there in the making of the continent, lies Socotra, a little island to which the world gives scant thought, but which sends its pleasant messages to the nostrils of thousands each day. It is the "Isle of Frankincense" from which comes much of the pleasant, aromatic gum burned as incense alike in the churches and temples of the West and the East.

Frankincense is a gum resin obtained from certain trees of the genus Boswellia, found in Socotra, East Africa and Arabia. An incision having been made in the bark of the tree, a milky juice exudes and slowly hardens in tear-shaped drops of yellowish hue. These are gathered as olibanum, or the true frankincense. The idea that frankincense was originally a product of India probably arose from a confusion of it with other odoriferous products of that country, and because of the fact that imported frankincense is sold with native Indian products.

Among ancient and medieval peoples frankincense was the physician's cure-all, being confidently administered for fevers, boils, internal disorders, leprosy, as an antidote to hemlock poisoning, as a sedative, a stimulant and a tonic.

In ancient times Socotra and the southern end of Arabia produced all the frankincense in the world, but today the largest supply comes from the Warsangli country, in Somaliland.

Socotra, 73 miles long by 35 miles wide in its widest part and lying 543 miles east of Aden, is said to be geologically older than eastern Asia; yet in the centuries which have elapsed since the argosies of Persia and Tyre sought it out for its precious balsams it has been almost forgotten. The Europeans who have visited it could be counted on one's fingers. Everyship that passes through Bab-el-Mandeb, east or west, sights its cloud-belted peaks and gives it room: for Socotra has no harbors, and the monsoon snarls about its uncharted rocks like a hungry lioness lying in wait for her prey.

Tourists Are Not Wanted.

If one makes his way to this out-of-the-way island he will probably sail into Tamarida bay, where before him, smothered in palms, will lie Hadibo, capitol of the island. In the distance he will see a vast rampart of gray limestone mountains thrusting needle-pointed peaks up into the clouds. These are the peaks of Haghier.

It should be explained that the latch string of Socotra does not hang out for tourists. Only after careful arrangements and the securing of permits does one venture to the island, and even then his reception may not be cordial. Its sultan has enjoyed isolation so long that he considers it a sort of priceless privilege and wishes to preserve it.

Hadibo, or Tamarida, as the Arabs call it, from Tamar, the date-fruit tree, is a collection of flat-roofed white houses scattered among the palms. The sultan's "palace" is a large mud structure with flat towers, and the two prayer houses are suggestive of the graceful Arab mosques only by contrast. The poorer population, chiefly of African descent and much older in the history of the island than its Arab aristocracy, lives in huts of thorn and plaited grass, invariably overrun with luxuriant gourd vines. Surrounded by tiny garden plots, in which tombac, or native tobacco, lentils, melons, and yams grow abundantly, they are more picturesque outside than inside.

There is not much to be seen in Hadibo. The principal amusement afforded the visitor is that of being seen; one is fortunate if any part of his person or belongings escapes much handling, as well as the sharpest kind of scrutiny. Yet they are a kindly folk, hospitable and quite harmless. Quarrels among themselves are said to be almost unknown.

The women for the most part keep shyly veiled, or crowd behind the doors, while the men may bring out their small stores of skins, dried tombac, lumps of frankincense and aloes for inspection. It is said that in ancient times the Socotran women exercised the arts of magic, and among the Arabs the legend still survives that they were wont to sit on the rocks and lure mariners to disaster with their smiles. Possibly the Socotran women were the Circes and the Sirens, so fatal to the old Greek sailors; but if so, their charms have sadly deserted them since, or the sailormen of that day were even more impressionable than sailors are now.

Beside Hadibo is a khor, or lagoon, that winds its placid way through the palms. Strangely enough, a strip of sand not more than 50 feet wide divides its sweet waters from the brine of the sea. There are several of these silted-in lagoons along the coast, and that eminent traveler, the late Theodore Bent, thinks they are the remnants of ancient harbors in which the smaller ships of those times easily found shelter.

Nothing could be lovelier than the sight of slender Socotran cattle grazing kneedeep among the grasses and the palm branches that line the banks of these khors. Clouds massed above and mountains near behind; long shadows dappling the water, and the sun turning to gold the tawny flanks of the cattle makes a picture of pastoral beauty rare to behold in this part of the East.

Hard Trip Into the Mountains.

If one would see the frankincense tree—and to the Westerner that is the most interesting thing that Socotra holds—he must journey into the rough mountains, a trip that is far from being a holiday jaunt. The trail up the narrow gorge of the Motaha, worn by camels' feet and the torrential rains, is narrow, rocky and exceedingly steep. In places it is scarcely wider than the width of one's beast, and the great thorn bushes beside it tear with insatiable claws at flesh and clothing. Flowers—yellow, blue, and crimson—some familiar, but most of them strange, and creeping vines over low trees give the whole jungle the appearance of a lovely, unkempt garden—like a woman with disheveled hair. Occasionally one encounters the hideous cucumber tree, with its swollen and whitish stems, looking like enormous candles which had guttered horribly. This tree grows nowhere else, and the rest of the world is none the worse for it. Its proper foliage consists of a few tufts of leaves, with little yellow flowers at the top of its knobby branches; but one sees vultures roosting in nearly every tree and they seem its fitting fruit.

After nightfall the traveler up this trail will see lights appear on the faces of the cliffs. They are the beacon fires of the Bedouin cave-dwellers, who live on nothing but the products of their herds. They are a folk so timid that only occasional glimpses may be caught of them.

On the higher hills and mountain slopes are much larger trees than lower down, many of them strange and curious. Most interesting of all are three species of the famed dragon's blood—whose ruby-red fluid was used to dye the robes of olden queens—which are all about on the slopes, like battalions of skirmishers half hid in ambush.

The natives call these trees A'araeeib and their resin M'soilo. In ancient times Socotra was known as the only home of the dragon's-blood tree but nowadays Sumatra and South America furnish the world's supply. It is rarely used as a dye now, but chiefly in the preparation of varnishes. The Socotrans themselves employ it principally for streaking odd designs on their earthen pots.

One who knows frankincense only from its odor will see with surprise his first tree in its native setting. It is undoubtedly a tree, but it looks nearly as much like an enormous sea-serpent in the act of shedding its skin, so awkwardly contorted and alive it seems. Tiny, whitish peels cling loosely about stems and bole of a peculiarly livid, blotchy hue. The woody fiber of the tree, distended with its viscous sap, is like nothing so much as decomposing animal flesh, and even the few bright red, geranium-like flowers cannot soften its repulsive aspect. But it is indeed the frankincense tree, the leelee-ah of the Socoteri, the olibanum or al-luban of the Arab, and the Boswellia socotrana of science. The fragrance hanging all about and the partially dried, resinous "tears," exuding from wounds in the bark made by insects, testify to its nature.

Gathering the Frankincense.

The process employed by the natives in gathering the luban is simplicity itself. About a month after the rains begin, say in June, when the tree is swollen with sap, the Socotran gathers his household about him and they go among the wild trees which tradition has allotted him as a family inheritance. Each tree is given ten or a dozen deep, oblique slashes two or three inches in length, and a wrench of the knife tears the lower end of the wound open to form a kind of pocket. In these pockets the amber-colored or whitish "tears" of resin collect, hardening slowly. At the end of a month the collector returns, rips out the partially hardened resin with the point of his knife, and makes more wounds in the bark. He repeats the process once a month until the end of September.

As soon as the luban tears are hard they are ready for the market, and they are usually bartered to an Arab trader for kerosene or cotton cloth from America. A tree in Socotra will produce annually about eight pounds of luban, worth ten cents a pound; a Somaliland tree will produce twice as much and of a quality twice as valuable.

Aside from its strangely varied and odd vegetation and its bizarre scenic beauties, there is not much, perhaps, in this fertile, almost forgotten island of Socotra to attract the tourist unless he be a student of ethnology. There are still to be found in the ruins of Zoko, the ancient capital (Suk, the Arabs call it), traces of a very early civilization.

WHITE CHARGES RADIO MONOPOLY

Maine Congressman Would Break it With Bill Giving Government Greater Regulatory Power.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, Dec. 13.— In an effort to smash what he termed the "radio monopoly in America" Representative Wallace White, Republican, Maine, announced today that he would introduce in congress a bill providing for strictest federal regulation and control of all radio companies and activities in the United States.

"The report of the federal trade commission and of private investigators indicate that certain leading companies and interests in the country are endeavoring to establish a monopoly in wireless communication through control of the manufacture and sale of radio instruments," White said.

He declared that "the radio ring's activities" extended beyond American shores "through contractural arrangements giving exclusive privileges in the transmission and exchange of messages in foreign countries, especially in Europe." Through these arrangements, White charged, "radio companies are enabled to set their own prices for transmission of messages between the United States and Europe."

"If the radio is to be of any value to the government and the general public we cannot tolerate a monopoly in this business," he said.

"As the initial step to break the back of this ring," he continued, "the government must have an enlarged and strengthened authority over control of operators of radio companies and transmitting stations in the country."

This would be done in his new bill, he pointed out, by providing for the licensing, after examination, of all wireless operators, exclusive of those in government stations. Radio companies would be required to obtain permits from the government.

"Further, I intend to include a provision demanding immediate revocation of licenses and permits at any time sufficient evidence is produced to show that there is a monopoly or a conspiracy among leading firms to restrain legitimate trade."

White charged also "that there seems to be a strong warrant for the widespread belief that radio companies are deliberately holding down the supply of wireless instruments in an effort to arbitrarily set prices for their commodities.

"JIMMIE" HARE LECTURES TONIGHT

The lecture given by "Jimmie" Hare, war photographer, entitled, "Photography Under Fire," will be given this evening at the high school auditorium under the auspices of Kingston Post, No. 150, American Legion. Mr. Hare, who was a war photographer for Collier's and Leslie's since the Spanish-American war, has a great collection of photographs which he personally made at the scenes of activities. Incidents of humor were connected with the taking of these photographs as well as incidents of great difficulties and danger. "Jimmie" Hare has photographed many of the most important events of wars since the Spanish-American war, and although no longer as young as he used to be, he was again sent to Europe during the World War and visited the various fronts and scenes of activity where his camera recorded many interesting things.

SMITH TO AWAIT GRAND JURY REPORT IN GREENE

Intimates He'll Delay Action In Rothenberg Case.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 13.—Governor Smith intimated today the state would take no action for the present at least in the murder of seven-year-old Howard Rothenberg of Newark, N. J., at Windham last August.

Attorney General Carl Sherman, who conferred with District Attorney Charles G. Coffin of Greene county last night about the case, will go over the case with the governor later in the day.

It is believed the governor will wait to see what action follows the report of the grand jury which has been investigating the slaying for the last few weeks.

KINGSTON WINS EXHIBITION GAME

Wednesday evening at the armory court the exhibition game between the Kingston Metropolitan League team and the Whirlwinds of Brooklyn was not a contest that was entirely pleasing to the small crowd in attendance. The final score saw Kingston in the lead 29 to 22.

To begin with the Whirlwinds, as they called themselves, came here minus the services of players that have been in their ranks recently. Stretch Mechan, Stretch Harvey, Barlow and others were not present. In these players' stead were three players young in years and young in the professional game. The Stutchbery brothers and Eddie Clarke with Griebe and Conaty made up the squad. The last two mentioned players have experience in the court game, playing with teams in the Metropolitan circuit.

Manager Morgenweck tried out a young player named Curley in the first half of the contest in the forward position with Carl Husta. In the final period Chet Dolson played in Curley's stead. Both these players handled the ball well.

Carl Husta was the leading scorer with fifteen points. Husta caged three fields and nine of eleven chances from the correction line, which is a very good record. F. Stutchbery did the best shooting for the visitors, caging seven points.

During the first half the local representatives couldn't get going and trailed at the end of the period 15 to 12. During the second period Kingston played better, holding down the Brooklyn quintet to seven points, while they themselves caged sixteen points.

Charlie Powers was in the center position with M. Husta and Artus as guards, making up the local club. A referee new to local fandom and maybe new to the game, named Kearns, was the eleventh man in the act. During the contest he called a total of 47 fouls, which needless to say slowed up the game. The Whirlwinds committed 26 out of which Kingston made good 15. Kingston committed 21, the Whirlwinds caging but 6.

Scoring from the playground the visiting team beat the home club 8 to 7. The visiting players made some pretty baskets from long range.

The score:

Kingston.

"BLINKING" SIGN AT HEAD OF B'WAY

One of the largest electric signs in the city has recently been erected upon the garage and sales room of Sutliff, Inc., at the junction of Broadway, Albany avenue and Maiden Lane. This firm which has the agency for the Chevrolet cars for Ulster and Green counties, will soon have a "blinking" sign. At present it is constant but when all the work has been completed it will flash. The sign which weighs a ton contains eighty 60-watt lamps and is a representation of the Chevrolet emblem. The sign has been placed at a point of vantage on the roof of the building and can be noticed either at night when lighted or in the daytime for a long distance.

Since taking over the agency for the Chevrolet car considerable improvements have been made in the building to provide additional room. The stock room has been moved from the gallery downstairs on the main floor where the ladies' rest room formerly was. The room used as a stock room on the gallery will now be converted into additional office room.

BUILDING FIRST AVENUE SEWER

The board of public works has started the construction of a sanitary sewer in First avenue, extending from the Ulster & Delaware railroad crossing to Moore street, a distance of about 1,100 feet. This sewer was requested by the residents of that street, who filed a petition with the board.

Working On Big Bridge.

Workmen were busy today on a scaffold near the top of the tower on the Esopus side of the Rondout Creek Bridge repairing minor defects and painting. The state employs one man here permanently to keep the bridge in condition and he generally employs two assistants.
